

More support when you need it the most

At UnitedHealthcare, we want to be there for you and your family when you may need extra support. As a part of your UnitedHealthcare® Group Medicare Advantage plan, qualifying members facing an advanced illness can receive an extra layer of support in the form of home-based care, also known as palliative care while seeing your usual provider(s) and continuing with current therapies. Depending on your needs, these services may offer:

Care team

Doctors, nurses and social workers will be assigned to you and your family based on your needs.

Compassionate care and attention

In-home visits with your team and 24/7 phone support. Clinical team members can prescribe medicine to help with fatigue, nausea, shortness of breath, difficulty sleeping or pain.

Care coordination

Your clinical team works closely with your existing providers to coordinate your care and can help you find resources such as copay assistance, meal delivery and caregiver assistance.

Improved communication

Your team can help identify your needs and align your care with them. Your clinical team will keep your doctors and others involved in your care informed of any changes in your condition.

Education

Your team can provide education to you and your family about your illness, plan of care, medications and much more.
